CONFERENCE THEME

Development and transformations are costly; yet not Developing or transforming can be costlier. Today all the nations are adapting the resilience to overcome the new challenges in development and transformations.

Post-pandemic, although at a slow rate, India has been a story of resilience and recovery, gliding on the wings of hope as its powerful force.

Dealing with the agonizing human effects of Covid-19 together with mounting inflation and wavering geopolitical scenario, there is a substantial positive sentiment across sectors in India to go full-control on the recovery process to sustain the economic growth of the country. Mitigating climate change continues to require prompt multilateral action to limit emissions and raise investment to speed up the green transition. The war in Ukraine and rising energy prices have put pressure on governments to turn to fossil fuels such as coal as a substitute measure. Policymakers and regulators should ensure such measures are temporary and only cover energy shortfalls, not increase emissions overall. Credible and comprehensive climate policies to increase green energy supply should be accelerated instantly. The energy crisis also demonstrates how a policy of clean, green energy independence can be compatible with national security objectives. The outlook has darkened significantly since April. The world may soon be wobbling on the edge of a global recession, only two years after the last one. Multidimensional cooperation will be key in many areas, from climate transition and pandemic preparedness to food security and debt distress. During great challenge and strife, strengthening cooperation remains the best way to improve economic prospects and mitigate the risk of Geo - Economic fragmentation. Even though private investment is slowly picking up, it is the government that is the driving force behind India's economic recovery. The conference intends to get researchers contribute to the new trends of Geopolitical developments and Global economic transformations across the nation and the globe.
